Summary Argument:

Conferences with lower ranking according to citation analysis by Google Scholar, such as ICICSE (International Conference on Internet Computing in Science and Engineering), KEOD (International Conference on Knowledge Engineering and Ontology Development), APSCC (Asia-Pacific Services Computing Conference) all justifiably currently have C ratings.

ICICSE

The H5-index and H5-median for International Conference on Internet Computing in Science and Engineering (ICICSE) are lower: 6 and 9 respectively.

Source: https://scholar.google.com/citations?hl=en&view_op=search_venues&vq=International+Conference+on+Internet+Computing

KEOD

The H5-index is the same but H5-median for International Conference on Knowledge Engineering and Ontology Development (KEOD) is lower: 8. Source https://scholar.google.com/citations?hl=en&view_op=search_venues&vq=KEOD&btnG=

APSCC

The H5-index is the same but the H5-median for IEEE Asia-Pacific Services Computing Conference, APSCC is lower: 9.

On the other hand, EATIS:

H5-index 7 and H5-Median 10 (https://scholar.google.com/citations?hl=en&view_op=search_venues&vq=%09Euro+American+Conferen

Additional Notes

The EATIS proceedings were almost always published by ACM Digital Library and/or IEEE Xplore Digital Library.

The Brazilian official system to classify scientific production (Qualis, <http://qualis.ic.ufmt.br/>) ranked EATIS conferences with B3 (it was B4 until two years ago). The conferences are grouped into performance classes that range from A1 (=best), A2, B1, ..., B5 (=worst).

Also EATIS usually has collocated workshops or symposiums as the IEEE Smart City Symposium Prague,(3 editions) and Workshop EATIS Smart Cities (Bucaramanga, Colombia).

Another differential of EATIS conference is the possibility of papers be written in three main idioms of Europe and America (English, Spanish and Portuguese) which can give rise a wide participation of researchers of these continents.
