EWSN was reviewed in 2017 and again in early 2018 (after more information was supplied by the EWSN community - original information was supplied as comparator for another conference). It has experienced somewhat declining submission rates since peaking at around 150 submissions per year a decade ago, with a relatively stable acceptance number and hence an increased acceptance rate over the last five years of typically 23-25%. Despite the approximate halving of paper submission volumes, it has continued to attract submissions and support from leading researchers in the area, and overall can still be regarded as an A.
