This is a comparator and retaining the rank of B was considered justified. Its Google Scholar h5-index is 18, which is higher than other B-ranked conferences. The acceptance rate is quite high (average over the last 3 years is ~53%) with around 70-80 papers published each year. The PC chairs typically have high h-index (e.g., average h-index for the PC chairs was around 36). PC members also have decent h-index (average h-index was 16 last year) and ~36% of PC members had an h-index of at least 18.
