The submission was reviewed as a comparator and is currently ranked A. This is a specialist conference focusing on interactive surfaces. The conference conference is not listed in the top 20 Google Scholar conferences on HCI and has an H5 index of 16 however, this might be caused by the relatively small size. The acceptance rate is typically between 25-30% with around 110 submissions which is a healthy acceptance rate.

The General Chairs and program chairs are relatively strong and each year's leaders in their field participate in the organisation (as General chair or PCs) (h-index range of 10-74). The conference is a sibling conference to the better ranked CHI conference and papers with a display/surface focus that would be rejected from CHI would be submitted here.

The conference proceedings have just moved to being published in PACM, and so the conference should be ranked as Journal Published.
