LPAR was provided as a comparator conference. Its current rank is A, which was found to be justified. The conference happens quite irregularly, but roughly bi-annually. The number of papers is in the high 30's on average and the acceptance rate hovers around 50. Its h5-index is 17 (not given in the submission), which is ok, given the small number of papers every 2 years or so. The PC was found to be very strong and strong people publish at the conference.

Annabelle McIver stood aside from this decision due to a COI.
